

C H R I S L E I D Y

Chris Leidy Photography Launches New York Studio

New York City, NY—April 21, 2016

Chris Leidy, opened his New York City studio with a celebratory launch at 149 West 22nd Street in New York City. After 8 years of showing his extraordinary collection of fine art photographs in Chris Leidy's home of Palm Beach, he has moved to New York where he has already caught the attention of art collectors, designers, and ocean enthusiasts.

Chris Leidy has found his inspiration within the depths of global oceans. Amidst mass movement and his solo dives, he explores light, motion and scale underwater to compose his vision. He goes in the deep-seas and dives in mysterious and unpredictable depths in landscapes with extraordinary creatures. His adventures have mostly been in the warm waters of Papua New Guinea, Fiji, Micronesia, Vanuatu, the Cocos Islands, and most recently Sumatra, Tonga, and the Solomon Islands. His next adventure will be an exploration of ice in the Arctic, May 2016.

His choice to capture the rare elements of natural beauty underwater and to share them with those who may never experience this first hand is his mission. This vision is presented in a two part series titled STOP MOTION and FOCAL POINT; both of which seize the fast pace of light and life below the surface. They are curated through mediums such as aluminum, lustre & matte paper, and plexiglass further defining his visual language.

About Artist Chris Leidy

Christopher P. Leidy is the great, great grandson of Joseph Pulitzer, the Hungarian born American newspaper publisher who established in 1917 the Pulitzer Prizes. He is the grandson of re-knowned designer Lilly Pulitzer Rousseau. Chris has steadily established his own legacy as the foremost underwater artist producing images of rare beauty. Chris Leidy Photography is located at 149 West 22nd Street in New York City and the Palm Beach Gallery is located at 219 Royal Poinciana Way. Inquiries should be directed to sales@chrisleidyphotography.com. Images and information can be found at www.chrisleidyphotography.com.